Abstract

In 2018, Taiwan launched its Bilingual 2030 National Development Policy, aiming for one-third of elementary to high schools to adopt Chinese-English bilingual education by 2030. Central to this policy is the implementation of CLIL (Content and Language Integrated Learning), the most widely practiced bilingual teaching approach in Taiwan. This online presentation will share some of the impacts of CLIL on Taiwan's educational landscape and the challenges it has faced. The presentation will benefit researchers and practitioners seeking strategies for implementing CLIL in diverse contexts.
